

Project 1

Course Code and Name: MSJ1201 Communication Research

Project Name: Analysis of the Fashion and Costume trend of Bangladeshi Film and Media Industry (1940-2020)

Project Type: Research Proposal

Project Theme: N/A

Semester of Submission: Summer 2022

Project Description:

This research proposal focuses on the changing fashion and costume trends in the Bangladeshi film and media industry from 1940 to 2020. The study explores how historical events, cultural changes, and Western influence have shaped clothing styles over time. It also examines the role of films and media in promoting fashion trends while preserving elements of Bangladeshi culture and tradition.

Project Justification:

Fashion is more than clothing; it reflects a country's culture, history, and identity. In the film and media industry, costumes help express characters, stories, and social values. As Western fashion and modern media continue to influence Bangladeshi society, it is important to understand how these changes have affected our traditional fashion. This research was conducted to analyze the evolution of fashion trends in Bangladeshi films and media and to identify the balance between cultural heritage and modern fashion. The findings can help researchers, media professionals, and fashion enthusiasts better understand the relationship between media and fashion.

Research Proposal

Course code: MSJ 1201

Course Name: Communication Research

Submitted to:

Nandita Tabassum Khan

Senior Lecturer, Media studies and Journalism
University of Liberal Arts
Bangladesh

Submitted by:

Samia Hasan Athay (221012055)

Ebsan Zaman Dipto (221012038)

Sumaiya Anika Jahin Shama (221012022)

Md. Shariar Hossain (221012018)

Tanbin Jahan Sumaiya (221012034)

Date of submission:

21.09.22

INTRODUCTION	4-5
Focus idea	4
Context	4
Reason Behind Choosing The Topic	5
Research Objectives	5
Research Questions	5
Scopes and limitations	5
LITERATURE REVIEW	6-9
Literature review 1	6
Literature review 2	7-8
Literature review 3	8
Literature review 4	8-9
RESEARCH DESIGN AND METHODS	9-10
Methodology	9
Sampling	9
Budgeting	9-10
Timeframe	10
REFERENCE	9-10

Analysis of the Fashion and Costume trend of Bangladeshi Film and Media Industry (1940-2020)

INTRODUCTION

Focus Idea:

Costume design and Fashion design both provide distinctive and innovative designs, yet each has limitations. Fashion designers must consider the needs of the retail sector and create items that will be in demand. Nowadays, communicating with the public involves a lot of fashion and clothing senses. A nation's culture, native traditions, and thoughts about the environment are all conveyed through clothing. In order to assist people in changing their physical, psychological, social, and moral state, clothing primarily conveys character and personality aspects to the audience. In our current film industry, there has been a significant change in costume. especially actors, actresses, or models who have worn attire inspired by western society. This links the new culture to our traditional culture.

Context:

The subcontinent got liberated from the colonial powers around 75 years ago. In 1971 Bangladesh was ultimate! born after this a reason only to realize it had been divided up into multiple regions. Many styles have come and gone within many years but one thing has definitely been the obsession of the people of Bengal, to look their best thick and. thin. In 1940 women were encouraged to work. After India gained independence from British colonialism, trying to make the traditional Bengali technique of draping the same was tricky to use. This was during the era of partition and poetry. On the other hand, 1960 had seen the emergence of cinema, new fashion trends, and tight skirts. Ladies used to use fine-toothed combs to tease their hair, designing mountains of knots which were then combed out to provide a beehive impression. The Bengalis were adopting sleeveless blouses with body-hugging salwar-kurtis and chiffon saris whereas the western world was launching miniskirts. The decade of the 1970s was the most vibrant for fashion in the newly independent country. Runa Laila and Bobita, among many others, were prominent fashion icons for the community. Bobita's updo and Runa Laila's sparse eyebrows have become iconic fashion touchstones. In the 1980s, a period of liberation, creativity, and fashion, Bangladeshi women started to experiment with their appearance. When Bollywood and Hollywood were prominently present at the time to inform what to wear, females also accomplished some independent research. The 1980s was undoubtedly the decade best known for the growth of fashion in the nation, which had previously experienced more significance. The entire Bangladeshi fashion scene changed to reflect the emerging western culture in the 90s and '00s centuries. Bangladeshis were more fascinated by pure westernization having lost most of its ability, fusion, a flawless blending of both East and West attraction. The fashion landscape or trends in our nation have undergone significant changes from 2010 to 2020. Many people were still dressed in western attire. The country had a wide selection of unisex dresses. The focus of fashion from 2010 to 2020 has been on fusion and the restoration of vintage looks.

Reason Behind Choosing The Topic:

Costumes are a wonderful aspect of theater since they explain the tale, assist actors to adopt their characters, and immediately inform the audience of what is happening. The basic fact of fashion design is not only that people need clothes but also it symbolizes culture and tradition. Designing can be a long process. I chose this subject for research because it describes the consequences of changing the fashion sense of the Bangladeshi film and media industry. As per the perspective, we can see that the change in fashion is slowly coming from British rule, but the western part of British culture, Bengali is still unable to take it, but slowly due to the education, modern culture, or everything, we are mixing their culture with our own culture. a new culture is created by the fusion of the cultures of the east and the west, not the whole Orient.

Research Objective:

1. Identify our native fashion and costume patterns.
2. To analyze the trend-changing process through the film, and the media industry.
3. To analyze the forecasting of fashion trends in Bangladesh.
4. To analyze the repetitive fashion trend after 2010.

Research Question:

1. What are the native fashion and costume patterns of Bangladesh?
2. What is the effect of various incidents from (1940-2020) on changing trends in film or media?
3. What is making the film and media industry forecast the fashion trend?
4. Why are we getting repetitive fashion trends after 2010?

Scopes:

1. We will learn more about various fashions from the previous decades of film.
2. We will be able to observe the repetition of fashion trends.
3. We can learn how fashion forecasting works in the film and media industry.
- 4.

Limitations:

1. It will take a very long time to observe all the films from 1940 to 2020 and consequently we may not get through all the fashion trends.
2. We will not get the chance to interact with the previous generations who followed the previous trends.

Literature Review:Literature Review#1

Title	Changes of Fashion Trends for Apparels: A study with respect to Bangladesh and West Bengal.
Author, publication year, and Journal /DOI	Isita Lahiri and Humaira Siddika (2014) Contemporary Issues and Trends in Fashion, Retail and Management
Aim/Objective	• To determine the problems associated with shifting West Bengali and Bangladeshi clothing fashion trends. • To ascertain the various fashion-related customer behaviors.
Methodology & Sample	Methodology: Using the descriptive study methodology, information regarding the current situation is gathered (Malhotra N., K., 2006). Sample: • In a group of individuals aged 25 to 50, including men and women, 180 samples of consumers were chosen from the Dhaka Comilla district of Bangladesh and the Nadia and Burdwan Districts of west Bengal (90 from each nation).

	• Random sampling with stratified selection was the method used. • The entire population is represented by the sample. • • The sample was drawn from families and universities. • A group interview was done using a standardized questionnaire and a 5-point Likert scale.
Results/Main findings	• The element of creativity strongly influences fashion trends are influenced by the variables respectively. • Most of the consumers are not following others but instead want to create and bring about improvements in the way they dress. • only 3.33% of the consumers have the least interest in fashion behavior • Both male and female consumers' preferred outfits for semi-formal and casual occasions were observed.

Literature Review#2

Title	Influence of World's Fashion on Bangladeshi Fashion Trends from the 1950s to 2018.
Author, publication year, and Journal	Rumana Yasmin Chowdhury Natasha (2018) American Scientific Research Journal for Engineering, Technology, and Sciences (ASRJETS)
Aim/Objective	This study will inform individuals about history, explain why changes occurred, and identify changes in attire and appearance. It will also provide new insights and inspiration for aspiring fashion designers and cosmetics artists.
Methodology & Sample	Methodology: The main source for this study's analysis is secondary data. In addition, procedures for data collecting, literature reviews, data analysis, and content analysis are employed.

	Sample: A review of the literature on Bangladeshi fashion trends from East Pakistan to Bangladesh, as well as the evolution of fashion globally and the differences between western and eastern fashion, suggestions from fashion designers in our sector, and consultations.
Results/Main findings	Main findings: -In the 1950s to 1975, movie actors and singers served as the primary fashion symbols, and the only sources for fashion information were movies. -The state of the economy has an impact on fashion. -In a small town, fashion developed quite slowly. -The bell bottom dresses from the 1970s that we discovered in Bangladesh at the beginning of the 1980s. -Women began experimenting with fashion in the 1980s, even though -Because there was no internet in Bangladesh in the 1990s, the country was not particularly interested in global fashion. -The 1990s were characterized by Anarkali and flowing dresses. -In the 2000s, people began to adopt western fashion with the aid of the media and the internet, and at that time, jeans and unisex dresses were widely accessible in our nation. Additionally, our RMG sector was already on track to succeed, which it did. -From 2010 to 2018, it was all about fusion and the resurgence of vintage clothing. Result: Bangladesh is attempting to combine eastern and western styles in line with global trends. The main driver of changes in fashion is the variation of the silhouette. In addition to bodies, it appeared on sleeves and necklines as well. Additionally, we obtained many themes and printed them, and stitched from various civilizations. such as Greek key, tropical, bohemian, African tribal, etc. We have some limitations when it comes to design because our nation is centered on the Muslim religion.

	Designers are creating beautiful designs using the suggestions of global fashion while keeping our standards and values in mind.
--	--

Literature Review #3

Title	Fashion Marketing- Impact of Customer Exposure to Celebrity Endorsed Advertisement in the Buying Decision Process in Indore City.
Author, publication year, and Journal	Aditi Dang (2014) Contemporary Issues and Trends in Fashion, Retail and Management
Aim/Objective	• To comprehend how young people's perceptions are impacted by celebrity endorsements in commercials. • To determine the effectiveness of celebrity endorsement in attracting interest, stoking desire, and evoking action. • To investigate the impact of celebrity endorsements on children's purchases of branded apparel products.
Methodology & Sample	The current research examines the impact of celebrity-endorsed advertisements on young people's clothes shopping behavior in Indore City, mainly relying on primary data. Surveys are sent out at random to people between the ages of 18 and 25. 50 individuals formed the study's sample size.
Results/Main findings	• Choosing the right celebrities to serve as brand ambassadors helps increase customer persuasion. • The results demonstrated that using famous people as endorsers catches their attention, piques their curiosity, and increases the recall value of commercials.

	• The images, colors, and words used in the advertisement are more appealing to children. • The research also demonstrates that it can be challenging to use celebrity endorsement to sway young people's purchasing decisions.
--	--

Literature Review#4

Title	The World in Dress: Anthropological perspective on clothing, Fashion, and Culture.
Author, publication year and Journal	Karen Tranberg Hansen (2004) Annual Review of Anthropology DOI: 10.1146/annurev.anthro.33.070203.143805
Aim/Objective	* To acknowledge the connection between politics, culture, and people's sense of style. * It is stated here that different clothing sections of each region of the world are in e Linked with their culture. * There are some limitations or regulations on women's dress based on religion.
Methodology & Sample	The investigational approach is used for this study. The author had to complete significant tasks on clothes in culture studies, popular culture, folklore, entomology, psychology, and marketing fall when he was producing the study paper. Along with homosexual and lesbian studies, which is a topic covered in culture and media, he also works on fashion and subculture style. concentrate primarily on anthropology, teenagers, and the general adult population
Results/Main findings	This study demonstrates that anthropology does not have a distinct area for studying apparel. It shares our society's general discipline and influence. With religion, many garments and outfits transformed in intricate ways (Islam and Christianity). Each region's clothing has distinct cultural beliefs. Depending on the environment, politics, economy, and level of religiosity, clothing or fashion spreads among people and is readily embraced by them.

--	--

RESEARCH DESIGN AND METHODS:

Methodology: A qualitative method is approached in this research proposal. And we will be using the content analysis process for this study. The finding of the research is descriptive so we will be dividing the total years (1940 to 2020) by 10 and analyzing the fashion and costume of film and media every 10 years in Bangladesh.

Sampling: A purposive sampling technique will be used for this research. The contents will be chosen based on the influence of a mass audience. From every 10 years, 3-5 contents will be taken.

Budgeting:

Category	Budget required
Resources (Books, Journals, Publications)	5000 TK
Stationary (Papers, printing, pen, etc)	500 TK
Operational Costs (laptop/computers, hard drives, Internet, etc.)	2000 TK
Logistics (table, chair, car .. if required)	4000 TK
Transport	2000 TK
Remuneration for data collectors	5000 TK
Miscellaneous	2000 TK
Total	20500 TK

Timeframe:

Category	Time required
Background data collection	6 days
Literature Review	10 days
Data collection (depends on the method)	16 days
Data Processing and Analysis	8 days
Writing final findings	2 days
Total	42 days

Reference:

- Chowdhury, M. M. (2017). Fashion through the years: Bangladesh. The Daily Star.
- Lahiri, I. & Siddika, H. (2014). Changes of Fashion Trends for Apparels: A Study with Respect to Bangladesh and West Bengal. Contemporary Issues and Trends in Fashion, Retail and Management, 11-17.
- Natasha, R. Y. C. (2018). Influence of World's Fashion on Bangladeshi Fashion Trends from the 1950s to 2018. American Scientific Research Journal for Engineering, Technology, and Sciences (ASRJETS), 45(1), 42-48.
- Dang, A. (2014). Fashion Marketing- Impact of Customer Exposure to Celebrity Endorsed Advertisement in the Buying Decision Process in Indore City. Contemporary Issues and Trends in Fashion, Retail and Management. 3-10.
- Hansen, K. T. (2004). The World in Dress: Anthropological perspective on clothing, Fashion, and Culture. Annual Review of Anthropology. DOI: 10.1146/annurev.anthro.33.070203.143805

Learnings and Outcomes (Self-reflection):

- Learned how to prepare a research proposal by identifying a research problem and setting clear objectives.
- Improved my understanding of research questions, literature review, and research planning.
- Understood how media, culture, and social changes influence fashion trends over time.
- Developed analytical and research skills by exploring the connection between fashion, communication, and cultural identity.